

In the six days after the earthquake, the number of heart attack deaths fell below average levels, they said.